

ABSTRACT

Novel compositions are provided comprising geranium oil and extracts from the roots of the plants of the genus Sophora, preferably Sophora tonkinensis. The compositions can be administered to mammalian animals, including humans, undergoing cancer treatments, such as chemotherapy and radiation therapy, that would induce the side effect of bone marrow suppression. The compositions may be administered before, during and or after the cancer treatment.